The health and safety of Wade Trim’s employees, clients, and vendors are our priority. Our offices are now open with only those comfortable returning doing so. Returning staff are following local and CDC guidelines for preventing the spread of the virus, including daily health screens, as we continue to deliver solutions for our clients’ projects. Enhanced cleaning protocols are in place and we are practicing safe physical distancing and wearing face masks for in-person contact.

Our field staff must pass daily health screenings and are equipped with necessary PPE, including face masks, to minimize the risk of spreading the virus while they provide construction observation and survey services on essential infrastructure projects.

We continue to monitor the U.S. Centers for Disease Control, World Health Organization, and state and local health authorities for the latest updates and recommendations affecting our operations.

Wade Trim takes the COVID-19 threat seriously and is using all reasonable measures to prepare for and mitigate the risk of COVID-19 transmission to our employees, clients and community, while continuously delivering services to our clients. We are eager to get back to our offices, but we will do it at a pace where everyone feels safe and comfortable.
